

Adding Additional Questions to Your Course

Faculty custom questions are questions the faculty are able to write specific to their course section. These questions must be added to the course by the faculty member before the survey is open to students (survey done during the last two weeks of class instruction). The questions that faculty ask specific to each course section are often centered on the topics of particular learning materials or modes of delivery of instruction--things specific to the section at hand.

- Only faculty will be able to see the results to their specific custom questions in any live site reporting.
- Campus administrators are able to see the results to these questions in the raw data export only.

If you would like to add custom questions to your course survey, see this helpful article on the Campus Labs website for how to add custom questions.

- Once you understand this process, you can add custom questions by going to your Faculty Dashboard.
