Deadlines: 3/20/2012
SYNOPSIS:

The Louis Stokes Urban Health Policy Fellows Program is a 12-month policy training and leadership development program that targets early to mid-level policy professionals who are committed to eliminating health disparities nationally and globally. CBCF Louis Stokes Fellows receive health policy training while working in a CBC Member’s personal and committee office. Typically, they spend five months working in a congressional member’s office and the remaining seven months working on a congressional committee that focuses on health-related issues. CBCF complements the fellows’ policy training on the Hill by providing opportunities to improve and develop leadership skills so they can be more effective in their professional roles. The program also includes educational enrichment opportunities through seminars on policy and politics. These seminars explore hot-button policy issues, the politics of policymaking and policy implementation, and evaluation of policy already implemented. Fellows are also exposed to the history and work of the Congressional Black Caucus, and prepared to analyze the impact of policies on African Americans and other minority groups. Participants in the Louis Stokes Urban Health Policy Fellows Program must reside in or relocate to the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area. Compensation for the fellowship term is $40,000, with benefits. Fellows are responsible for their own travel, housing, and other associated expenses.

SYNOPSIS:

The sponsor invites applications for the Ruth L. Kirschstein National Research Service Award (NRSA) for Individual Predoctoral Fellows in Nursing Research (F31) program. The purpose of the program is to train future generations of outstanding nurse scientists who are committed to research careers in scientific health-related fields relevant to the programmatic interests of the National Institute of Nursing Research (NINR). This FOA encourages Individual Predoctoral Fellowship (F31) applications from institutions/organizations that propose to increase the number of nurses prepared with a doctoral degree in order to meet the demands for adequately trained behavioral, biological, and biobehavioral scientists. NINR is particularly interested in facilitating the progress of students who are in research training programs for recent nursing graduates and students in BSN to PhD programs. This fellowship program will provide predoctoral training support for doctoral students. The applicant should propose a research training program and dissertation research that is consistent with the scientific mission of the NINR. This FOA will utilize the Ruth L. Kirschstein NRSA F31 award mechanism.

The sponsor makes awards to strengthen the connections between scientists and journalists by placing advanced science, engineering and mathematics students in newsrooms across the country. Approximately fifteen to twenty fellows will be selected.

Deadline Note:
The application deadlines are December 12, 2011 for the linked long-term fellowship, and February 6, 2012 for the linked short-term fellowship.

SYNOPSIS:

Fellowships long-term studies in residence sequentially at the Newberry Library in Chicago and Herzog August Bibliothek Wolfenbuttel, Germany. The proposed project should link the collections of both libraries.
The sponsor offers residential Visiting Fellowships which are designed to provide applicants with the time and space to work on research, while interacting with leading scholars. The sponsor offers numerous opportunities to explore the work of noted scholars through seminars, conferences, and roundtable discussions.

Temporary suspended. The sponsor provides funding for professional on-the-job education and training opportunities for post-graduate students in the coastal resource field and to provide assistance to state coastal resource management programs. This two-year opportunity offers a competitive salary, medical benefits, and travel and relocation expense reimbursement.
SYNOPSIS:

The sponsor awards training fellowships at the National Library of Medicine (NLM), designed to prepare librarians for future leadership roles in health sciences libraries. Fellows are appointed for renewable one year fellowships.

SYNOPSIS:

The Joyce Tracy Fellowship is for research on newspapers and magazines or for projects using these resources as primary documentation.

SYNOPSIS:

The Science to Achieve Results (STAR) Fellowships for Graduate Environmental Study (NCER) program is designed to provide funding for graduate students and postdoctoral fellows to conduct research on environmental topics.
The sponsor offers graduate fellowships for master's and doctoral level students in environmentally related fields of study. The sponsor plans to award approximately 80 new fellowships. Master's level students may receive support for a maximum of two years. Doctoral students may be supported for a maximum of three years, with funding available, under certain circumstances, over a period of five years. The fellowship program provides up to $42,000 per year of support.

The sponsor provides fellowships to encourage research and writing based on the holdings of its Library. Grants provide a modest amount of support to facilitate travel to the library and to underwrite research-related expenses.

SYNOPSIS:

Each year, twenty participants are selected from around the country for this year long program; The Emerson National Hunger Fellows Program. Fellows assemble in Washington, D.C. in August for a comprehensive orientation and field training, where they learn about hunger and poverty in the United States, the local and national programs designed to address the issues, and the various approaches to social change. Fellows are placed for five months with community-based organizations involved in fighting hunger and poverty at the local level, such as grassroots organizing groups, local advocates, economic development agencies, food banks, and city/state government agencies. Each host organization identifies specific goals and outcomes for the Fellows and provides the supervision and resources necessary to accomplish them. In mid-February, the Fellows regroup in Washington, D.C. to debrief and share their field experiences and participate in an extensive policy training to learn about national anti-hunger and anti-poverty policy work. Fellows then work in nonprofit organizations and government agencies involved in designing, implementing, researching, and advocating for anti-hunger and anti-poverty policies at the national level. During their time in D.C., Fellows complete research, outreach, advocacy, and public education projects that support national policy initiatives. They also meet regularly for professional development trainings.

SYNOPSIS:

Williams College provides fellowships designed to promote diversity on college faculties by encouraging students from underrepresented groups to complete a terminal graduate degree and to pursue careers in college teaching. The fellowships are two-year residencies at Williams College. Up to three scholars or artists are appointed each year. Fellows devote the bulk of the first year to the completion of dissertation work—or in the case of MFA applicants, building their professional portfolios—while also teaching one course as a faculty member in one of the College’s academic departments or programs. The second year of residency (ideally with degree in hand) is spent on academic career development while again teaching just one course.

Tel: 202-263-2800
SYNOPSIS:

The Congressional Fellows Program offers public policy training to young professionals by providing them with an opportunity to work on Capitol Hill. Fellows work in congressional member and committee offices, attend leadership development seminars, complete a community service project and produce policy papers. Office assignments as full-time legislative aides run from September through August. During the office placement, Fellows gain invaluable experience as they assist in the development of legislative and public policy initiatives. Fellows work 40 hours per week on a range of staff assignments, including legislative analysis, responding to constituent mail, drafting talking points and speeches for members, and coordinating logistics and public testimony for Congressional hearings. Fellows also have educational enrichment opportunities through seminars on policy and politics. These seminars explore hot-button policy issues, the politics of policymaking and policy implementation, and evaluation of policy already implemented. Fellows are also exposed to the history and work of the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC), and prepared to analyze the impact of policies on African Americans and other minority groups. Participants in the Congressional Fellows Program must reside in or relocate to the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area. Fellows are paid an annual salary of $40,000, with benefits. Fellows are responsible for their own travel, housing and other associated expenses. The current program dates are from August 30, 2012 to May 9, 2014.

Deadlines: 11/10/2011

SYNOPSIS:

The theme for the sponsor's proposed 2012-2013 fellowship years is Institutionalization, Innovation and Conflict in 13th Century Judaism: A Comparative View. The proposed fellowship year will bring together scholars of Jewish, Christian, and Islamic social and intellectual history. The aim of this interdisciplinary enterprise will be to develop a more fully integrated account of Europe and the Mediterranean basin in the 13th century. Major attention will be paid to the way that material and social changes contribute to the creation of new kinds of political and religious institutions and also to the formation of new intellectual horizons and religious concepts.
