

CELEBRATING NATIVE AMERICAN HISTORY

Featuring Award-Winning
Native American Recording Artist
*Shea Redhorse

Monday, November 11th @ 6:30 p.m.,
Tennessee Tech University Multipurpose Room,
2nd Floor, Roaden University Center

**&

Native American History Exhibit by Rick Moles
Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 11 a.m.

Tennessee Tech University Oakley STEM Center

(Exhibit will also be on display Monday evening in the Multipurpose Room)

Presented by the Office of Multicultural Affairs with Rick Moles and Troy Smith, Ph.D.

Native American recording artist Shea practically grew up on stage. Touring since the tender age of twelve, Shea has traveled the world with Grammy winner Micki Free, opening up for such artists as Eric Clapton, Paul McCartney, Stevie Wonder, John Meyer, Sheryl Crow and many more. Educated in sports medicine, she also understands the importance of health and fitness for her people and helps educate about the effects of diabetes in Native Country. Shea is a proud Cherokee Native!

